

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

PUBLICATIONS REVIEWED

"Some Bird Friends," by Henry F. Pullen, Victoria, B. C. Published by the Free Lance Company, Victoria, British Columbia, Canada.

There are thirty pages of text, including twenty-three half-tone cuts in the text, besides a full page frontispiece and a full page ocean scene facing the last page. The delicately tinted cream-buff paper makes a pleasing combination with the black type, but is not well adapted to half-tone reproductions. It is possible that a coarser mesh screen would have given a better effect. Fifteen of the headings relate to bird species which are common in the region which is here under discussion, while the headings "Game Birds" and "Birds of the Swamp" cover several species respectively. It is a popular treatise, written in entertaining style, intended to please while instructing. To one who is familiar with the region those essays call up visions of the pure bracing air, with the taint of the ocean in it, the vast reaches of the dark green forests, and the feeling of limitless freedom peculiar to the far west.

"Conservation of Our Wild Birds," by Bradford A. Scudder. Issued by the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association, Boston.

"Birds that We Should Encourage to Nest About Our Country Homes," "Nesting-Boxes," "Martin Houses," "Bird Baths," "Winter Feeding of Birds," "Berry and Seed Bearing Trees and Shrubs," "Aquatic Plants," "The Establishment of a Sanctuary," "Enemies of Wild Birds," "Bibliography of Works Pertaining to Birds and the Out-of-Doors," with four illustrations, indicate the nature of the subject matter and the nature of this 71-page brochure. Its value is enhanced because of the completeness of the topics, and the clearness with which the topics are handled. It is made clear that not all birds can be attracted by the same methods, or by one method of treatment. We take issue with the author that the Barred Owl is very destructive to wild bird life. In our experience it is less so than the Screech Owl. Of course there may be a difference in different districts. We commend this publication as an aid to the conservation of our wild birds. L. J.